COMB SAGE TEAN LIFELESS, GRAY HAIR

It mixed with Sulphur it Darkens
so Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a few of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or weakened appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By using any drug store for "Wheat's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use for about fifty cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wheat's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly, that nobody can tell it has been applied—it is so easy to use. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

New Mexico where conditions are similar and where the dairy industry can be increased by such enlargement of homesteads.

"In the mountainous sections where agriculture and stock farming are impracticable, I favor the segregation of lands and their sale for grazing purposes—preserving at the same time the timber and minerals to the state in larger bodies, even than six sections, if more are necessary to make the undertaking profitable, thus bringing every part of the state to a revenue producing basis in its most natural way."

"Furthermore, I am unalterably opposed to the sale of our agricultural and stock farming lands at any price so long as there are people desiring and striving for an opportunity to use their right to homestead, or men with only 160 acres wanting and needing 640 acres."

"And to sell these lands at $1.25 per acre would lower the present and growing value to a point that would be criminally unfair to the actual residents homesteaders who have undergone in many instances the greatest privations in order to establish and maintain the present values through their efforts in agriculture and stock farming. It has taken years to bring these values up from $1.25 to $5, $10, $15, $20 and even $25 per acre. Values fall to the lowest level rather than rise to the top mark. Would you, therefore, reduce the value of eastern New Mexico lands to $1.25 per acre? But that is not all: Your bill also provides for the sale of our best agricultural and fruit lands—lands that have thousands of gallons of water flowing less than 40 feet from the surface, therefore subject to irrigation—in bodies of 1295 acres at a minimum of $4 per acre."

"I believe in utilizing every foot of New Mexico land to produce revenue and sustain at home a rapidly growing population, in the manner best adapted to each particular section of the state, and that new legislation should conserve as far as possible, the industries of particular localities—but I do not believe in sacrificing values already established, values on which banks have loaned money, the changing of natural to artificial conditions to such an extent that industry and at the same time hinder stock farming operations and choke the now rapidly expanding dairy industry."

"This letter is not intended as an arraignment of yourself in the eyes of the public, but merely a statement of conditions as they exist in eastern New Mexico as I see them, and which view of the matter, I believe, should be brought to the attention of those who are so vitally interested."

THE EXTENT OF MINERAL WASTE

From the Forthcoming Report of Joseph A. Holmes,
Director of the National Bureau of Mines.

It is a reasonable estimate that the present waste, in a large measure unnecessary, of mineral resources amounts to a national loss of not less than $1,600,000 a day.

In one respect, at least, a consideration of the mineral wastes has a basis quite different from the consideration of agricultural wastes. Our crops represent an annual production from a reasonably permanent soil; our forests may grow again, though a much longer period of time is required; and the soils themselves may be reproduced from the subsoil and the rock beneath. But our mineral resources we have only the one supply. This supply is to a considerable extent destroyed in use, and at the present increasing rate at which we are using and wasting it, our one supply will be exhausted, or largely depleted, while the nation is yet in its youth.

The most urgent need for investigation and reform is in connection with the unnecessary waste of oil and natural gas that still prevails in many parts of the country. Even with the limited facilities at its disposal the bureau has been able during the current year to stop a waste of natural gas valued at not less than $100,000, an amount that exceeds the value of the total cost of the bureau's investigations to date. There is urgent need of enlarged facilities with which to push this work more rapidly. A few years of further delay and this valuable source of national wealth will have been wasted—permanently lost.

The individual operators in causing this waste have followed their natural bent for temporary gain. The states have permitted this criminal waste without protest, fearing that interference might retard development. Will the national government do the same? The saving already accomplished was the result of the inquiries and researches that enabled the engineers of the bureau to demonstrate to the oil and gas men in one of the Oklahoma fields that much waste of gas could be prevented without stopping the drilling for oil.

If the funds at the disposal of the bureau had been large enough to provide for more extensive investigations and demonstrations, the prevention of waste could have been much greater. As it is, however, in many parts of the Oklahoma oil and gas fields the waste of natural gas that still continues is equivalent to $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 per annum, and this waste in all the oil and gas fields of the country now aggregates more than $50,000,000 per annum. The total waste of the nation in the different oil fields of the country more than 80 per cent is believed to be easily preventable. As regards the remaining 20 per cent, it is believed that gasoline may be extracted from much of it and the gas itself burned for some useful purpose.

PRESIDENT WILSON COMMUTES SENTENCE OF JAMES T. FAY

[Special Dispatch to The Herald.]
Santa Fe, N. M., April 8.—The president has commuted the sentence of James T. Fay of Farmington, sentenced to one year in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $500 recently in the United States court for alleged taking of three gallons of brandy from the farmington distillery without paying the revenue tax thereon.

The punishment of Fay was considered extreme under the circumstances, by the prosecuting officers, although there has been a complicated case surrounding the Farmington distillery which the government finally closed, and confessed. When it came to sentencing Fay the court first pronounced a light sentence, but found later that under the law he was required to add the prison sentence.

above Embudo, Toas county, to make locations of claims, which are thought to be immensely rich in gold and may be worked by a hydraulic system of mining.—Toas Recorder.

Announcement was made this week that the controlling interest in the Artesia Copper company, lately organized has been purchased by E. C. Hughes, Neil M. Schuster and Homer Rothberg. With a few exceptions former stockholders will hold stock, but these three gentlemen have a majority of the stock. This reorganization brings into the company men with capital necessary to develop the mine, and the work on the copper claim east of Artesia will be pushed to the limit.

The first shipment of ore from the mine of the Artesia Copper company brought $40 a ton in copper, besides small amounts of gold, silver and other metals. The mine is now deeper and the last shipment brought $43 a ton. A rate of $5 per ton has been secured from Artesia to the El Paso smelter and more ore will be shipped from now on, as with the increased capacity more can be taken out.

The company will follow the lead wherever it goes, and there is every indication that the ore will grow richer as they go down. It is already a big paying proposition for the amount of work finished.—Artesia News.

DOUGLAS SAYS HIGHER PRICES FOR COPPER MUST PREVAIL

James Douglas, president of Phelps Dodge & Co. in the annual report of the company says that higher prices should be obtained for copper in the future to compensate for the increase of expense of producing the metal.

"Under legislative enactment and social aspirations the demand of labor will be more exacting," he says, "and the taxes, representing the cost of government, will become more onerous. The mines, being always under corporate management, will have to bear more than their fair share of the burden. The state taxes paid by this company and its subsidiaries have risen from $431,559 in 1912, to $605,421, and federal taxes amounting to $178,872, based on business, have been levied. The cost of concentrating and smelting can probably be lowered by improvements in both method and practice, but with greater depth and the general decline of the ore, the cost of mining will tend upward rather than downward."

"Judging from the average stability of price during a period of years we may infer that the price of copper in the future will not be lower than realized during the expiring decade. In fact the price of the future should be higher to compensate for the increase in expense of producing the metal."
